

A Vegetarian Diet For Lent

In the past, Lent has been associated with a period of self-sacrifice in pursuit of a more aesthetic Christian way. More recently, the emphasis has become orientated towards a practical, outward witness, bringing positive benefits to others.

May we introduce you to the concept that seeks to reconcile these very two virtues!

The VEG4LENT initiative invites fellow Christians to extend the principles of Love, Mercy and Reverence, towards the two million animals otherwise killed daily in the UK. The reality of such 'food production' entails a very real and violent form of oppression, on a truly vast scale. Yet, is this avoidable and gruesome scenario one which an awakened Christian conscience should seek to countenance, let alone contribute to?

There exists a more peaceable way.

We can live healthier and more spiritually consistent lives, in forsaking an acquired taste for meat. Our very lifestyles combine to perpetuate healing or harm, depending on the ethical choices we make. Let Lent herald a more contemplative Christian presence in the created world.

A world originally intended by God, envisaged by the prophets and for which we pray.

To help you decide, please send for our free "Veg4Lent -Introduction" booklet.

Veg4Lent, Foresta, Pines Road, Liphook, GU30 7PL.
Tel. 01428 723747 Email: chairman@veg4lent.org

Sponsored by: Christian Response (Worldwide) Charity No. 1083085

A Vegetarian Diet For Lent

In the past, Lent has been associated with a period of self-sacrifice in pursuit of a more aesthetic Christian way. More recently, the emphasis has become orientated towards a practical, outward witness, bringing positive benefits to others.

May we introduce you to the concept that seeks to reconcile these very two virtues!

The VEG4LENT initiative invites fellow Christians to extend the principles of Love, Mercy and Reverence, towards the two million animals otherwise killed daily in the UK. The reality of such 'food production' entails a very real and violent form of oppression, on a truly vast scale. Yet, is this avoidable and gruesome scenario one which an awakened Christian conscience should seek to countenance, let alone contribute to?

There exists a more peaceable way.

We can live healthier and more spiritually consistent lives, in forsaking an acquired taste for meat. Our very lifestyles combine to perpetuate healing or harm, depending on the ethical choices we make. Let Lent herald a more contemplative Christian presence in the created world.

A world originally intended by God, envisaged by the prophets and for which we pray.

To help you decide, please send for our free "Veg4Lent -Introduction" booklet.

Veg4Lent, Foresta, Pines Road, Liphook, GU30 7PL.
Tel. 01428 723747 Email: chairman@veg4lent.org

Sponsored by: Christian Response (Worldwide) Charity No. 1083085